The Daily Beatles Mark Lewisohn about the upcoming volumes

One of the interesting questions put to Lewisohn at the very end of the Q&A session was why the Beatles took such a long break exactly 50 years ago. Returning from their American tour on September 1st, 1965, collectively The Beatles did nothing for six weeks, which did make the creative process of writing and recording "Rubber Soul" in time for the Christmas market a difficult and rushed one.

The Beatles All These Years Wikipedia

The Beatles: All These Years is a three-part series of books about the Beatles and their cultural impact, written by English historian Mark Lewisohn. The project was begun in the early 2000s and has yet to be completed. He described the endeavor as a response to the "poor" standard of research typically afforded to the band's history. The first volume, Tune In, was published in 2013.

The Beatles' Decca audition Wikipedia

The English rock band The Beatles auditioned for Decca Records at Decca Studios in West Hampstead, north London on 1 January 1962. They were rejected by the label, who instead selected Brian Poole and the Tremeloes. Some of the songs recorded for the audition had been available as bootleg recordings but some songs were officially released on the Beatles rarities compilation Anthology 1 in 1995.
